Spartacus is a 13.5 year old male Boxer. This is not my first time using Cansema. I learned about black salve from a vet who saved my 12 year old Boxer Delilah from a rapidly growing cancer lump next to her nose. I was told the black salve only touches unhealthy cells and leaves healthy cells alone and it can find the margins since it has the intelligence to differentiate healthy from unhealthy.

It takes time and preparation and a little goes a long way. I used two very small 22g veterinary version on Spartacus' lump. I have taken care of over a dozen boxers since the 1980s and I know their main cause of death has been cancer and heart problems. I have also used this stuff on myself four times. Three of the four, I had reactions and small tiny lump came off my cheek on one of the times.. The lump on Spartacus was difficult to put a bandage on. I could not actually. It's good to have H30 water or Vetricyn extra strength just to spray on the healing wound so it doesn't get infected.

I had to shave the fur with a Bic razor in order for the Cansema to penetrate. I had a very small nick from the disposable razor that allowed a small dab of Cansema to penetrate. It eventually caused a sinkhole on the lump and I kept eye on Spartacus' reaction/how he was doing depending on how much and how often I used, but at first it was a small dab daily. He did lick it off a few times.

The lump incidentally was small for a long time and then all of a sudden had grown to a hard lemon or lime sized lump which caused me concern. He has always been very healthy (I have limited vaccines) and at 13.5 years old, didn't want to take a chance.

So I started on November 28th, 2019 and as you can see, by January 9, 2020 (6.5 weeks), the lump is actually hard for me to find now.
